EDITORIAL FLINGS

Passenger rates on railroads remain at levels which suggest to prospective trippers loading the family into the automobile and hitting the gipsy trail, especially as the dog can go along.

The seventeen-year-old locust is once again reported swarming, this time in the direction of Chicago. Descriptions of its expected destruction read very much like forecasts as to the result of the tariff. But then the tariff is so much older and more experienced in its work.

Harry Sommers of the Elizabeth-town News, asserts that editorials are not read. Some of them are not written to be read, some couldn't be read, and some couldn't be figured out if they could be read. For instance, try this column and see how smart the editor thinks he is.

When it comes to space there's no place in this country that can put on airs and swell up like the big State of Texas. A modern statistician has figured out that the entire population of the world, divided into families of five persons each, could be located in Texas, with a house on a half-acre lot, and there would still remain some vacant lots.

After wandering along Main street the other night and inspecting the millinery displays in various windows a Paris man reeled off the following:
"My wife would trim a hat
And I produce for that.
I pay for gilt and gauze
And other furbelows.
She doesn't think, not she
That she is trimming me."

On Beautiful Stoner
Two girls with gay and ringing tones
Disported near the shore;
One was worth ten thousand bones
The other even more.
(At this point a gay Paris dude asked of the lady at the boat landing: "Anything worth catching in Stoner?")
The lady gave the dude a look
Ere turning to her biz;
And then one parting shot he took:
"I'll say there is!"

We have always thought that of all the professions on earth there was none better suited to our inclinations than that of a college professor, and we have long known that we possessed one qualification that no table of tests could take away from us. We would certainly enjoy that three-months' vacation as much as the college professor. But now comes a pesky reformer to suggest that the way to get the maximum of usefulness out of our colleges is to keep them going all the time. Our idea of a reformer is one who is always taking the joy out of life.

They're telling the following on a well-known young Paris business woman whose place of residence is in the vicinity of the Massie Hospital: The other night her husband was taken ill suddenly with something resembling sea sickness. Friend wife hastened to a neighbor, who gave her a home-made remedy. Shortly after this Friend Wife hurriedly reentered the neighbor's home with the exclamation, "Oh, my, Mrs. ——— hubby is sicker than ever, just like sea sickness." The sympathetic neighbor said: "Wait a minute, I'll make him a mustard plaster." "Oh, goodness," ejaculated the wife, "he's so sick he couldn't keep that on his stomach, either." Then the neighbor had to explain that the plaster was for external, not internal use, and Friend Wife departed, happy.

PARIS PLAYGROUNDS PATRONIZED

The playgrounds will have their annual doll show Friday, June 30, from four to six. All of the playgrounds will unite in this event at the city school. Premiums and prizes will be offered for the following classes: Dolls—China, paper, rag, oldest, hand-made, most unique, foreign, daintiest dressed and the funniest. Furniture—Hand-made, oldest, imported, doll buggy. Individual prize will be given to the child having the best exhibit. This contest is open to both children and adults in Paris and vicinity.

The base ball schedule will start Tuesday afternoon at three o'clock on the Wilson playground, when the City School will meet the Wilson. Thursday the Brennan and Wilson will play and Saturday the City School and Brennan. All games will be played on the Wilson playground and the public is invited.

Wednesday from four to six all the mothers are cordially invited to visit the nearest playground and inspect the work there and get acquainted with the supervisor. Refreshments will be served by the children.

A real bonfire and marshmallow roasting was given on the City School and Brennan playgrounds last night at seven-thirty and will be given on the Wilson playground tonight. The supervisors will give a prize to the boy or girl who tells the best story. All the boys and girls are urged to come.

Friday is stunt day and in the afternoon the program will consist of only the following stunt races: Peanut race for the boys and girls 6 years and under; potato race for girls; paper race, girls; monkey race, boys; cracker race, girls; apple race, girls; crab race, boys; three-legged race, boys; candle race for boys and girls. Prizes will be given to the winners.

The Wilson playground, supervised by Francis Adams, assisted by Bob McCarty, led in the attendance last week. The attendance this week should be larger and the parents are urged to send their boys and girls to the nearest playground where they may use their leisure time by engaging in wholesome and healthful play. Help to keep the boys and girls off the streets. Is the play of your child preparing him to be a useful citizen?

PRESS ASSOCIATION TO MEET THIS MONTH

Friday's program will be featured by speeches from well-known newspaper men, and the selection of "the best newspaper in Kentucky." Prizes will also be awarded to the publisher submitting the best set of advertisements and the best specimens of job printing, the prizes given by Enoch Grehan, head of the department of journalism, University of Kentucky.

The annual banquet will be held Friday night in the Crab Orchard Spring Hotel dining room, with E. A. Jones, of the Louisville Herald, acting as toastmaster. Speakers at the banquet will be Senator J. S. Haselden, Desha Breckinridge, editor of the Lexington Herald; Harry Giovannoli, editor of the Lexington Leader, and T. C. ## TEACHER'S PAY CANNOT BE ATTACHED

A school teacher's salary is exempt from attachment under the State law which prohibits this action against a State officer, Circuit Judge R. C. Stoll ruled in the case of the McAppln company, of Cincinnati, against Emma Wills Rowe, a teacher in the Lexington city schools. The McAppln company sought to attach the salary of Miss Rowe to enforce the payment of a bill incurred by the teacher when she purchased a dress from the store in Cincinnati.

The suit was first brought in the Fayette county court when County Judge E. H. Doak recently in passing on the case held that a school teacher's salary could not be attached. Circuit Judge Stoll in his ruling sustained the opinion given by Judge Doak though he cited the law more fully.

PARIS BOY IN CHINA WRITES ENTERTAININGLY

THE NEWS is in receipt of a letter from Wallace Clark, of Paris, who is stationed in Shanghai, China, as representative there of the International Planters' Leaf Tobacco Corporation, whose headquarters are in New York. Writing from Shanghai, under date of May 20, Mr. Clark says:

"Attached hereto you will find a notice which appeared in a Shanghai newspaper a few days ago. The Chinese who wrote this notice are trying to explain to the foreign population why it is necessary to advance the prices on tea and silk. Similar notices appear in the local papers quite frequently, but this is about the best I have ever seen.

"Pigin English" is used in translating business with the Chinese but the writer of the enclosed tried to be more proper, but it would have been much easier to understand if he had used 'Pigin English.' To give you some idea of how 'Pigin English' is used, and what it means, I will relate the following:

"I called on a Chinese firm not long ago, and, after drinking a few cups of tea, I asked the manager if his business had been good and if he was making money on his investment, and he replied: 'Business no can walkee more far.' After drinking another cup of tea I realized that he was trying to tell me that business was dull, that he had lost money, and had decided to close his shop. In other words, 'His business could walk (go) no further.'

"I am getting along fine over here, but miss the Paris folks, THE NEWS comes regularly and is as good as a letter from home. With best wishes, and hoping the enclosed clipping will prove of interest, I am,

"Yours Truly,
"WALLACE T. CLARKE."

The clipping to which Mr. Clark refers is given below:
